

A media article, “Green to go: high-rise to high efficiency”, was published with OCV comment in the Sunday Age Domain on 17 August 2008. As the five-star energy ratings take root, how will residents of existing apartment blocks negotiate green changes?

The article “Pets and the city” wrote that animal-friendly multi-storeys are on the rise. Including OCV comment, this appeared in the Sunday Age, Living by Design magazine published quarterly, 24 August 2008.

The logo for Herald Sun, featuring the text "Herald Sun" in white on a dark blue rectangular background.

An OCV article on the Public Information Seminars was published in Fence Posts; Herald Sun, Sat 30 August 2008. “Fence Posts” is an opinion-editorial and is among the most closely read section of any newspaper and presents an expert’s authoritative point of view.

“Can’t pay, won’t pay” was a sinking funds article quoting OCV comments in AFR Smart Money section 6 September 2008.

Related to the public forums, “Strata Properties” was an OC register article by OCV that appeared 14 October 2008 in the Hobsons Bay Leader, Maribyrnong Leader, Wyndham Leader, Hume Leader, Northcote Leader, and Moreland Leader.

Again about the public forums in Wodonga & Shepparton, the “Owners Corporations forums” article was published in the North East Farmer in Oct 2008.

“New laws put heat on owners” in The Age 25 October 2008 included OCV comment and wrote that changes to strata laws have led to confusion.

“OC survival guide for new kids on the block” was a cover story including OCV comments in the Domain section of The Sunday Age on 7 June 2009. Forget Mischa Barton, OC stands for owners corporation and most people are unaware of the new laws governing it.

An article, “Managing the Manager”, in API magazine March 2009 wrote that it’s a great help to have an expert manage the day-to-day administration of a multiple unit building. But it’s worth knowing where to draw the line and who’s controlling whom.

